Report

Topic: "Mobile Application Development" by Utkarsh Shekhar- Alumni CSE- 2018

Date: 2nd - 4th April 2021

Time: 10:30 A.M.

Mode of interaction: Zoom

Mr. Utkarsh Shekar, Software Engineer, Sysfore Technologies Pvt. Ltd. was alumni of department of Computer Science and Engineering (2014-2018 batch), delivered a 3 days training program on "MOBILE APPLICATION DEVELOPMENT" from 2nd April 2021 to 4th April 2021. Mobile application development is the process to making software for smartphones and digital assistants, most commonly for Android and iOS. The software can be preinstalled on the device, downloaded from a mobile app store or accessed through a mobile web browser. The programming and mark-up languages used for this kind of software development include Java, Swift, C# and HTML5. The session was attended by more than 150 attendees including students and faculty of CSE department.

He is welcomed by Dr. Latha C. A. HoD, Department of CSE, and gave brief introduction about the Utkarsh and his journey at AMC.

It is decided to develop native applications one at a time, you'll likely want to begin with Android—for some of the same reasons that independent app developers often focus on Android. You'll probably have better luck developing the full application as an MVP on Android and then converting and optimizing it to iOS after release.

You will still need to debug and rewrite the code for the native language and redesign the front-end user interface, because the two operating systems function very differently, making cross-platform operation impossible.

Throughout the mobile application development process, developers must work to ensure that their mobile app is less resource intensive than a typical desktop application.

Delivering a great user experience is vital. That starts with understanding that your user interface for a mobile app should be simpler than a desktop application interface. By creating a straightforward UX design that is focused on critical functions, you can provide a better user experience while consuming fewer resources.
